HSBC history

HSBC history

HSBC was born from one simple idea – a local bank serving international needs.

HSBC was established in 1865 to finance trade between Europe and Asia. For 150 years we have connected customers to opportunities. In March 1865, HSBC opened its doors for business in Hong Kong, and today we serve over 47 million customers in over 70 countries and territories.

The experiences of the past 150 years have formed the character of HSBC. A glance at our history explains why we believe in capital strength, in strict cost control and in building long-term relationships with customers. HSBC has weathered change in all forms – revolutions, economic crises, new technologies – and adapted to survive. The resulting corporate character enables HSBC to meet the challenges of the 21st century.

Global Trade and Receivables Finance

Global Trade and Receivables Finance

Connecting Your Business to International Growth Opportunities

As the leading international trade bank we connect customers to opportunities. Expanding to new markets comes with a certain amount of risk and complexity. It involves everything from developing sales chains across multiple geographies to increase volume and revenues, to building stronger global supplier networks to meet customer demand and lower costs. And success hinges on having access to adequate working capital, whether that's unlocking cash trapped internally or ensuring all your partners have the funds they need to keep the supply chain moving.

The key is choosing a global banking provider who can provide a complete, holistic approach to trade and supply chain finance. HSBC's Global Trade and Receivables Finance can give you access to:

- Working Capital Optimisation solutions that help you run a more efficient business with faster access to liquidity and the ability to unlock funds.
- International Trade Growth solutions for expanding into new growth markets and making the most of existing global supply and sales chains.
- Supplier Finance Management solutions to strengthen partnerships with suppliers around the world and improve visibility and control over the global supply chain.
- Sales Finance Management solutions that support you in growing your sales and distributor network and reducing the risk of non-payment.
- Trade Risk Management solutions to help manage the risks of entering new markets – from working with new partners to price and currency volatility – while also helping you to protect strategic relationships.

Almost half of the world's key trade corridors have one end in a European country where HSBC is present*
